

LOCAL VICTORY LOAN CAMPAIGN AWAY TO GOOD START

Large Group of Workers Going Strong In Efforts to Put Wainwright 'Over the Top' in Bond Sales.

The Grand Old Flag is Flying. The symbolic torch standard flies proudly in the breezes over the Victory Loan headquarters at the Town Hall; telling to all and sundry that Wainwright district are determined that everything possible shall be done to put this district 'over the top' in passing the quota which is being asked from us here.

With apologies to Rudyard Kipling, fully cognizant of the truth of the lines, we quote the following as being most applicable to the effort being put forth for the next two weeks in obtaining loans to the Dominion of Canada in order that free men and women shall still remain FREE, and that our country shall NOT be placed in a subservient position among the nations of the world.

It ain't the guns or armament, nor the funds that they can pay; But the close co-operation that makes them win the day. It ain't the individual—not the army as a whole, But the everlasting teamwork of EVERY blooming soul!

And such teamwork is being well evidenced in the returns which the official representatives are turning in to headquarters daily, and which (without doubt) will continue to be turned in until the end of the big drive.

EVERY citizen of town and countryside MUST feel it is his or her bounden duty to lend to the extent of their financial ability, and with such splendid efforts as have been proven since Sunday, no doubt should exist that Wainwright will indeed have cause to be proud of the patriotism thus shown.

Subscribers to the Victory Loan have the very best security any investment can boast—the total assets of the whole Dominion. These bonds can be purchased for cash outright, or on an installment plan spread over six months. The bonds can be obtained in denominations of from $20 upwards, and bearer bonds are just the same as cash, and can be dealt with at any time exactly the same as dollar bills. All bonds will bear interest at the rate of two per cent for the five-year and three per cent for the ten-year issue, the interest coupons being redeemed in June and December of each year until maturity when the principal sum of the bond will be paid in full with premium.

It is confidently expected that the greater majority of sales will be made among the small investor or buyer, so that all may share alike in the loan, and all prove their determination to stand behind their country during this hour of need.

The ten official representatives for this area each have a number of other willing helpers, and it is the intention of these gentlemen to see that no one is missed in the canvass, and that ALL have the opportunity of taking up the bond effort. Any desired information regarding the whole campaign can be obtained from any banker, as well as from C. T. Lally, the Wainwright chairman, and Mr.

Ross McFarland, the Irma chairman. The unit organizer, Mr. W. J. Huntingford, is also prepared to answer any question which may arise in the mind of a prospective purchaser.

The next ten days are to be just crammed with war activities, including the flag-raising and torch dedication ceremonies at the public school grounds today (Wednesday) at 2:30 p.m. — at which it is hoped a good crowd will attend, and at all functions everywhere the Victory Loan will create such interest as will finally prove that the Wainwright district is not unmindful of what the Old Flag means to us all — VICTORY AND FREEDOM. Victory over the enemies of truth and right; freedom from the servitude which is being imposed by the Nazi hordes which have over-run Europe in the last two years.

In view of the shortness of the time for the complete campaign the headquarters office in the Town Hall will be open until ten o'clock each evening in order that no one will miss an opportunity of buying bonds. If you miss the representative, just drop in to the office at any time from ten till ten, and your application will be welcomed.

July 1st Sees Start Unemployed Insurance

Unemployment Insurance becomes an actuality in Canada from July 1. For the workers who are subject to periods of unemployment through no fault of their own it will mean the difference between being on relief or charity and the self-respect of having provided for their own welfare through a plan of insurance savings. The plan is one of co-operation between the employer, the employee, and the Government. Each makes a contribution based on the weekly wages earned by the employee. To the amount contributed by the employer and the amount deducted from the employee's wages, the Government adds one-fifth of the total, and pays for the cost of operation. These contributions are similar to insurance premiums, and accumulate against the day when the worker, either male or female, becomes unemployed. This briefly, is the Unemployment Insurance Plan which becomes a law of Canada, just as it has been a law of Great Britain for more than thirty years.

University Farm Young People's Week

On Tuesday, young farm people from all parts of the province gathered at the University for the twenty-third Annual Farm Young People's Week. This agricultural and home economics short course is sponsored by the Department of Extension of the University of Alberta under the supervision of Mr. Donald Cameron. Farm boys and girls between 16 and 27 years of age are attending. There are no tuition fees for the course, but a charge of $12.50 is made for room and board at the University residence.

Be Cautious

The announcement last week of the sinking in the Atlantic, by enemy action, of a transport carrying a number of local boys once again impresses upon the citizens of this district the seriousness and reality of this war. That is not enough, however! It should teach the importance of the movement of troops. Soldiers are the younger citizens of the nation and they associate with members of their own age. While no one would want them to be older than their years, talkativeness is one of the components of a healthy and vigorous personality and, unfortunately, dangerous in wartime. Boy friends and girl friends must talk about those dear to them and under certain circumstances this talk may be disastrous. Unless this war proves the exception to the lessons that history has taught, spies do roam this fair Dominion listening to this idle conversation in search of information to perpetrate their foul plans.

This article is no trade against the younger folk. Doting parents likewise fall victim to this weakness, which is ordinarily goodness. Nevertheless, it is wise to remember that the action is at war and that seemingly harmless talk, whether in person, by wire or phone, about the movement of troops that may be very perilous.

The danger of such conversation has been widely publicized and even this small newspaper has been given definite instructions as to the information that may be released. Surely, there is a grave responsibility placed on the public to refrain from discussing military movements. It would be a fine gesture of loyalty if it became a privilege rather than a duty!

VICTORY LOAN ORNAMENT IS ASKING DECORATION

The unit organizer for the Wainwright district (Mr. W. J. Huntingford) is anxious to see everyone in town display their patriotism by flying the flag during the campaign for the Victory Loan.

Merchants might also use suitable decoration for their store windows and in this way keep the big campaign for the $800,000,000.00 which Canada MUST have prominently before the public generally.

"Red, White and Blue; what does it mean to you?"
We are at war—every man—every woman, and every child. We, the people of Canada! We, the sons and daughters of our Empire must "man the guns."

What does "manning the guns" mean to us—opening the breach and injecting the shell? To some of us, it may mean just that. To the rest of us, who are working at home behind the lines, it signifies the tasks we must perform—the efforts we must make if our "active forces" are to go over the top for Britain. This is our battle, our responsibility, and ours must be the victory.

"Victory! What word could be more powerful? The trenches are filled with men fighting for it. The seven seas are encircled by sailors battling for it. The clouds harbor bombing planes and fighters, which day after day, spit volumes of fire to gain it. How can we at home secure it? Canada needs money. Somehow—some way, 'our overseas and home units MUST be supplied with more materials. Guns and ammunition must stream continually across the waters. From somewhere money must be had. We, who make up our country, are the only ones on whom she can call. She does not ask us for donations. She merely asks us to lend. Victory must be had. It can be had through Victory Bonds!

War Pictures To Be Shown Free at Elite

Mr. W. T. Brunker, of the Elite Theatre, has kindly consented to assist the local Victory Loan Committee by including in his evening's entertainment on Thursday (tomorrow) night as an added feature the three reels of specially prepared film from the Department of Information at Ottawa.

These pictures, known as "Canada War Aims and Services" depict the boys who are "in the army now," as well as giving vivid realization to what has been and is still happening on the battle fronts in England and Europe.

Don't miss the show on Thursday. In addition to the good Warner Bros. feature the above films will make a real "big night" at the pictures, and should also further the aims of the local War Loan committee in their big drive to help raise the six hundred million dollars which Canada wishes to borrow to "Raise Hitler!"

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank Dr. Wallace, Rev. Dr. Stevens and Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Sheffield, the Legion Guard of Honor for attendance, Mr. and Mrs. Mills; also the Legion and relatives for lovely flowers, all who kindly used their cars for the funeral of our dear brother Hugh Abernethy, also Mr. and Mrs. F. McLeod for genuine service.

Armoured Convoy Will "Attack" Alberta Towns

WAINWRIGHT TO SEE INTERESTING DISPLAYS BY ARMY MOBILE UNIT

A convoy of ten vehicles carrying 126 officers and men, is touring through Alberta giving color demonstrations at towns along the route. The spearhead of Alberta's present recruiting drive, this mobile unit will not only give thrilling displays of modern battle tactics, including a Bren gun carrier going into "action," but will also provide a glimpse of army life on its domestic side. A complete field-kitchen unit accompanies the convoy and it will "go into action" at mealtime. Camp will be made and tents pitched at overnight stops, and in the evenings the soldiers will take part in impromptu concerts and sing-songs around big camp-fires.

This is a visit of great interest and everything is being done in the towns visited, with the cooperation of local veterans' organizations, boy scouts, girl guides, and other organizations to make it a gala occasion.

The implication of these displays should not be missed, however. Canada needs recruits to man the tanks and guns and armored cars that it is now producing, and for the score of other units that make up a modern army. Tradesmen of all kinds are required and the army is prepared to train men in many crafts.

A recruiting party accompanies this mobile unit ready to give full information on the various units of the service and anxious to advise men as to where their particular abilities can be best utilized. Men who are interested in taking an active part in Canada's fight for freedom may take a full medical board and enlist in their own town.

The itinerary of the convoy includes a stop in Wainwright on June 10th and 11th and from there they will travel to Hardisty for their next display.

THIRTY-YEAR RESIDENT DIES, AGED 83 YEARS

Mr. Hugh McConnell Abernethy, who came to Wainwright in 1911 from Elliott Falls, Ont., where he married Miss Jessie Huston in 1890, died on Friday last at the age of 83 years.

He was predeceased by his wife some ten years ago, and there are left to mourn two sons (Glen and Earl) and two daughters (Mrs. Helen Smith of Vancouver, and Mrs. Chas. Abernethy of Wainwright). Two brothers and two sisters also survive, as well as 17 grand-children and four great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held from St. Andrew's (Pres.) church on Saturday last, the pastor Rev. Dr. Stevens conducting the service both there and at Wainwright cemetery where interment was made.

Full-bearers were Messrs. O. Yanush, G. Gregson, R. Reid, J. H. Mills, J. Murray and J. Murray, McLeod's relatives having charge of arrangements.

"One of the ways to bring this war to a speedy end is to convince the enemy not by words, but by deeds, that we have both the will and the means not only to go on indefinitely but to strike heavy and unexpected blows." — Churchill.

Victoria Day Winners of Local Golf Tourney

A very successful golf tournament was held on Saturday, May 24th, when the members of the local club displayed their hooks and slices and the outcome was as follows:

Men's First Flight—First, P. Pon; Second, W. Keenan.
Men's Second Flight—First, G. Schitt; Second, L. Mitchell.
Ladies' First Flight—First, Mrs. Nelson; Second, Mrs. Doomer.
Ladies' Second Flight—First, Mrs. Springfield; Second, Mrs. Stevens.

Owing to the many last minute withdrawals from the Ladies' Third Flight it was not possible to complete that event.

The next local golfing event will be the open tournament to be held on June 15th next.

Canadian Legion Hosts To Our Business Men

On Wednesday last the Wainwright Branch of the Canadian Legion entertained a goodly number of our local business men at a picture show and smoker in the Masonic Hall.

Through the kindness of Dr. C. Greenberg, the Irma, many rolls of film were shown, and the doctor was left in no doubt whatever as to the appreciation with which they were received.

Local President Geo. Glass took advantage of the occasion to make a small presentation to a departing comrade Mr. W. A. Knowles, who, though obviously taken by surprise, made a very fitting and neat response.

Mr. W. J. Huntingford spoke on behalf of the coming Victory Loan drive, and Mr. A. Adams and W. Carrell looked after the musical end of a very enjoyable entertainment.

Red Cross Auction Postponed For Rain

Saturday last being so inclement, it was decided by those having charge of the affair that it would be better to postpone it until Saturday, June 14th.

On that date, George Reynolds, who is donating his services, will wield the hammer over a very long list of useful and ornamental goods and it is hoped that there will be a real big crowd of buyers for these articles which have all been donated to the cause.

Among the list is to be found a pure-bred 9-year-old Holstein cow (due to freshen shortly), pigs, chickens, and other live stock. A new incubator, household furniture galore (including everything from parlor to basement variety, a typewriter, clothing, dishes, etc., etc).

Any donations of goods for this big patriotic cause may be left at Massey-Harris warehouse, Hamrah's Hardware, and other stores, or, if in town will be called for, on June 13th, by phoning the committee—Mrs. Hannah or Rev. Dr. Stevens.

What you discard others may need and vice versa!

The W. A. deansy annual W.A. meeting is to be held at Viking on June 24th, when Bishop Barfoot, of Edmonton will be present as well as members of the diocesan board.

Protect Seed from Grain Mites

Damage to crops by insects and fungus diseases is measured in millions of dollars annually in Canada alone. In order to keep the ravages of these pests within bounds, the grower must be ever on the alert and ready to adopt control measures devised by the scientist whose investigations reveal new and improved methods and pesticides for dealing with the menace. Changing conditions bring new problems, and a pest which has been considered of minor importance in the past may become a formidable threat when new circumstances favor its activities.

In Western Canada the grain mite has become so serious a menace that a warning has been issued in poster form by the Division of Entomology, Ottawa and displayed in every post office of the Prairie Provinces by order of the Postmaster General. The poster gives instructions for dealing with mite-infested grain in storage, the chief precautions to be observed being proper ventilation, turning of the grain and the use of the fanning mill if necessary. There is a special recommendation that an organic mercury dust treatment be given seed wheat and a caution against the use of formalin for the purpose, since formalin greatly weakens germination of seed damaged by mites.

whereas the organic mercury dust improves it and, besides, will repel mites.

The reason why the mite menace has developed so acutely in the west is the hastily improvised storage bins and elevator annexes, constructed to accommodate the over-flowing wheat crop of 1940, also the rather moist condition of much of the grain going into storage. Consequently some heating occurred and favored the development of the mites which, in turn, produce more heat by their operations. Since the damage caused by the mites extends to the germ part of the kernel and is therefore more serious in grain intended for seedling, the obvious means for protecting seed grain against amut, root-rot, as well as mites, is its treatment with an organic mercury dust in fall.

One of the problems to be solved is the discovery of an economic chemical treatment for grain for food, which will eradicate the mites and leave no poisonous residue. Already some progress has been made with laughing gas and tear gas—two extremes one might say—and it is hoped that before the harvest of 1941 a cheap, effective treatment may be available. There is a saying that "big fleas have little fleas, and so ad infinitum." Of late years much progress has been made by the introduction of parasite insects which prey on the larvae of others. There is also a cannibal mite that feeds on the common grain mite and smaller hairy mite, but unfortunately the cannibal is in the minority.

The biggest buyer is South Africa where cricket, rugby and hockey are played everywhere. India, the Argentine, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, Egypt, U.S.A., Chile and the Far East follow in that order.

Canada takes 120,000 golf balls a year and 30,000 tennis balls; and the Dominion is a steady purchaser of tennis racquets. The United States buys thousands of pounds worth of golf balls and clubs. Australia and South Africa are the biggest customers for cricket bats.

The making of English cricket balls and bats are both skilled handicrafts passed on from father to son. The most famous cricket balls come from a group of craftsmen settled in Kent for generations. There is no truth at all in the canard that West Indian batsmen have destroyed England's store of bat willow. Stocks are safe and ample to meet the demand for wartime cricketers at home and overseas.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF
THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANIES
IN CANADA

TORONTO: — On "any given day as many as 25,000 industrial workers in Ontario are away from their jobs because of sickness.
Dr. Grant Cunningham, Director of Industrial Hygiene, Ontario Department of Health, writes in the current issue of "Health", organ of the Health League of Canada.

Sickness is the main cause of lost time from work, ten times as great as that due to industrial accidents, reports Dr. Cunningham, an authority on industrial health.

"Under stress of war production, sickness absence increases by as much as 50 per cent," he continues. "The excess is not due to respiratory and digestive disturbances, but rather to indefinite minor complaints of ill-health and discomfort associated with an acute sense of physiological function."

The main cause for this increased ill-health is described as inadequate rest, physical or mental or both. "Resistance to disease is lowered, mental outlook is distorted and illness ensues," he writes.

At least half the total time lost through sickness could be prevented,
Dr. Cunningham claims.
Recognizing the importance of keeping men who are engaged in war work healthy, the British government has required the employment by war industries of physicians and nurses, not for the treatment of disease but rather to make readily available to workers in industry the benefits of day-to-day supervision of personal health, and of conditions of living inside and outside the factory which
health.

The Health League of Canada has recently inaugurated a committee on industrial health. Their first task has been the preparation and distribution of a series of health posters and leaflets.

BRITISH SMOKERS USING MATCHES

British cigarette and pipe smokers are using more matches because of the very large number of petrol lighters now being sent overseas to help pay for the war.

Recent months have seen a phenomenal increase in the overseas demand for British lighters, both of the mechanical and the thumb-wheel types.

Australian importers have asked for the entire output of one British manufacturer. But they had to be content with a share, for supplies were going to Canada and Newfoundland, India, Burma and Ceylon, New Zealand, South Africa and Nyasaland, British West Africa, South America, Palestine, Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Aden, Malaya and China, Portugal and the Colonies, and Spain.

Only the other day a shipment of British-made lighters went into the Straits of Gibraltar for the tobacco-ists of Tangier.

NOT OUT

Golf balls and clubs, tennis balls and racquets, cricket balls and bats, hockey sticks and footballs are the main items among the £700,000 worth of sports goods sent out from Great Britain overseas last year.

The UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE PLAN

To the Employer...

Contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund become payable as from July 1st, 1941.

Contributions are made by the employer and the employee, and are paid by the purchase of Unemployment Insurance stamps by the employer from the Post Offices.

The employee's contributions are deducted from his wages by the employer.

Stamps will be affixed to a special book, called the Insurance Book, by the employer.
The book is the employee's record of contributions, and when he becomes unemployed it forms the record from which insurance benefits may be paid. Full details will be sent to you when you have returned the postcard attached to a form which is now in the mails.

The plan of procedure has been adopted after consultation with employer and employee associations and is one which has been based upon thirty years' experience in Great Britain.

The Dominion Government adds 20% to the combined employee-employer contributions, and in addition, pays the administration costs which include the operation of a National Employment Service for the convenience of employers and employees.

GARDEN SERVICE

Freshness

There is no substitute for the really fresh quality of vegetables grown at the door and picked when they reach just the right stage of maturity. Such have a flavor all their own. But there are plenty of people with big gardens that do not enjoy as much of this freshness as they should. With them there are a few meals of green peas, baby carrots and beets, new potatoes and corn, and that is all. Either the rows are finished or else there is nothing left but peas, beans and corn which should have been eaten days or weeks before.

With a little foresight and planning, however, these unfortunate could just as easily have had really fresh vegetables coming on all through the summer. They could extend even the green pea season to over a month, could have fresh corn from early summer until almost Christmas.

There are two ways to achieve this objective. First, the planting season can be spread over several weeks. Experts advise making at least three sowings of practically all vegetables, the first a week or so before the regular time, the second at the regular time and the third a week to ten days later.

A second way to extend the season of really fresh vegetables is to use more different types. In practically every line it is now possible to get an early, medium and late maturing sort. By sowing all three, one automatically extends the harvesting season. Corn offers an excellent example. A few years ago there was only one Golden Bantam type. Now one can get a Bantam type that matures a week ahead of the average and it is also possible to get a late kind. By using all three, and in addition spreading sowing from the earliest possible date to on in July, the season of harvesting is extended in like proportion.

In planting flower and vegetable seed spacing is important as even the enthusiast does not care to spend much time kneeling and thinning. Labor can be saved by not sowing too thickly. Corn, beets, peas and similar plants with big seeds can easily be sown at the distances advocated on the packet. With tiny seeded lettuce, alyssum or poppies, however, it is practically impossible to space by hand but if the seed is first mixed with a little sand and the whole sown carefully, plants will be spread out.

Even with all this care, however, usually some thinning of plants is essential later on. Quicker and sturdier growth will result where there is plenty of room.

Common Mistake

A most common mistake of beginners is planting too deeply. Authorities recommend as a general rule only sowing to a depth of four times the diameter of the seed. This means that things like peas and beans will be covered with about an inch of soil, but tiny seeds such as lettuce and poppies will be merely pressed in.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

During the long history of Britain there is one word that has ever been a guiding star to our people—the word DUTY.

It is because of the "Devotion to Duty" of such great figures as Drake, Cook, Nelson, Wellington, and of the one million soldiers of the Empire who gave their lives in the last war, that our people have had the quiet peaceful enjoyment of the wheat fields of Canada, the pastures of New Zealand and the mines of South Africa, the fisheries of Newfoundland, the pleasant lands and great cities of the Motherland, and of the justice, toleration, liberty and freedom enjoyed by all of us under the British flag.

Today these precious things are threatened by an implacable, efficient, numerous and ruthless enemy. Soldiers from every part of the British Empire are desperately struggling in the thick of battle against overwhelming numbers, to cling to strategic positions which must be held if Canada and the Empire is to survive; and so an urgent call has gone out for help, and today our young men have the high privilege of doing in turn their plain duty by joining the armed forces of Canada to reinforce their sorely pressed comrades now holding the Empire battle lines.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Canada exported 20.3 million bushels of wheat during April and 8.8 million bushels for the single week ending May 16th, the highest weekly export in 9 years—Estimates of wheat seedings for the 1941 wheat crop in 17 northern countries total 2.5 per cent below 1940—Seedings in Japan reported nearly 4 per cent below those of 1940 and crop prospects unfavorable.

Following factors have tended to lower price: The Kansas winter wheat crop is now estimated unofficially at 185 million bushels, up 19 million from May 1st—India's crops reported excellent and acreage up 2 per cent over 1940—Argentine corn stocks remain at a very high level with exports negligible.

PLANTS POISONOUS TO LIVESTOCK ON THE PRAIRIES

(Experimental Farms News)

Although there are a number of poisonous plant species in the prairie provinces, serious death losses in live stock seldom occur. This is due to the fact that most poisonous plants are more or less unpalatable and are not readily eaten unless there is a shortage of other forage. Occasionally, however, serious losses do occur, especially on overgrazed pastures, says J. A. Campbell, Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, Sask.

The seasonal nature of livestock poisoning should be noted. The greater number of cases occur in spring and early summer when animals are attracted to the green forage produced by many of these plants, after the long period of dry winter feeding.

Perhaps the greatest spring losses to livestock in the prairie provinces are produced by death camas. This plant has grass-like leaves of a deep green color which usually grow faster than the surrounding grasses. Later on the plant produces a yellowish green milk-like flower cluster six to ten inches high. The plant is found growing in patches in countless and moist draws throughout the prairie region. Sheep are mostly affected by this plant. Symptoms of poisoning appear soon after the ingestion of toxic doses. The poisonous principles of death camas are due to alkaloids.

Two other plants producing cattle losses in the prairie provinces are low harkspur, and tall harkspur. Low harkspur occurs in the Cypress Hills and foothills, while tall harkspur is common to the foothills. Cattle are mainly affected; sheep seem to graze it without harmful results. The poisonous principles are alkaloids occurring mostly in the leaves.

Seaside arrowgrass frequently produces losses in cattle and sheep. No specific poison is present in the plant itself, but when in contact with digestive fluids in the stomach prussic acid is produced. It is a perennial herb growing in wet alkaline soils, particularly around springs and seeps. Chemical analysis of this plant shows a high common salt content. Live-stock on inadequately salted ranges would therefore be tempted to graze it. Death usually results so quickly that little opportunity is presented for the use of remedial measures, although some have been prescribed.

Water-hemlock is a well known poisonous plant of wet areas. It decreased greatly in southwestern Saskatchewan during the drought years, but now is on the increase. It commences growth early in May and matures in late summer. Tubers and young shoots are dangerous at any season of the year, but particularly so in the spring and fall. It is one of the most rapidly acting poisons known. No antidote has been found.

Livestock poisoning due to locoweed is now comparatively rare in Western Canada. All classes of livestock are susceptible to the poison, but horses are most commonly affected. The active principle is not definitely known, but it is distributed throughout the whole plant and is dangerous at all seasons. Loco poisoning progresses slowly, differing in this respect from most poisonous plants. No antidote has been found.

In recent years considerable progress has been made in finding the cause of a disease variously known as "blind staggers", "alkali disease" and by other names. This disease is now known to be caused by selenium, an element taken from the soil by certain plants. Selenium poisoning is chronic, requiring several months to a year or more to develop. In the prairie provinces some of the plants known to contain toxic amounts of selenium are two-grooved milk vetch, narrow-leaved milk vetch, and salt sage. A number of other kinds of poisonous plants have been reported from time to time, including chokecherry. The leaves of young plants are known to cause losses among lambs prussic acid being formed in the stomach of the animal.

WORLD'S HIGHEST RAILWAY

Locomotives to cross the Andes over the highest railway line in the world are to be made in Great Britain.

They are for the Central Railway of Peru, the summit of which is 15,306 ft. above sea level, the greatest height of any standard gauge railway anywhere.

The line has 41 bridges, 61 tunnels and 13 reversing stations. It twists up the Andes for 74 miles of practically 1 in 25 grade. Here each of the two locomotives about to be made in Britain will take a load of from 350 to 400 tons.

They are 2-4-0 engines of general utility type for passenger and goods trains, with tenders arranged for oil burning and weighing 174 tons each.

Nine such engines, specially designed for the extremely severe conditions, have been supplied to the Central Railway and three similar units to the Southern Railway of Peru. The latest order will make a total

Line Elevators Exhibit

The North-West Line Elevators Association exhibit, now regarded as an institution at "B" class fairs, will be covering the circuit again this season. "A" class exhibitions at Brandon, Calgary, and possibly Regina, will also be included.

The central feature of this year's display will illustrate, by mechanical devices, the problem of controlling wind and water erosion of soil. Artificial dust and rain storms will illustrate the damage to soils from these causes. Adjacent to the damaged fields will be contrasting scenes showing the results obtained when control methods are applied. This portion of the exhibit will occupy the entire back section. On one end will be displays featuring production factors to include information on weeds, insects, plant diseases, and fertilizers. The other end will contain exhibits illustrating the production of grass and legume crops, the problem of grain mites in farm granaries, and the grading of grain.

Talking moving pictures will be shown in the exhibit as an added attraction.

This will be the fourth year in succession for The North-West Line Elevators Association exhibit to be shown at "B" class exhibitions. The purpose of the exhibit this year is identical with that of former years. That is, to present something which it is hoped will be both informative and entertaining to farmers and their families spending a holiday at the fair. You are cordially invited to visit our exhibit.

THE FUNCTIONS OF THE PRESS

This is one of a series of editorials especially designed to acquaint our readers with the various functions of the Press in a democratic community.

Editorial No. 9

THE PRESS AND LOCAL HISTORY

Few people, as they read their weekly newspapers realize that they are reading perhaps the only contemporary history of their community it is possible to read. It is doubtful too if they realize that as each issue gets old, the more valuable it becomes, and that the old files of a newspaper are from a historical standpoint, of incalculable worth.

The newspaper files are the most authentic history of the community available. They tell the story of the community life as it happens. Past history is important to those who live in the present. Those who live in modern surroundings are sometimes apt to forget the sacrifices of those who made the community what it is today. It is not so very long ago when the territory served by weekly newspapers was virgin forest or prairie, untouched by the hand of the white man. It was a territory upon which the plowman had never turned a furrow, a wild and beautiful country in its natural state. In the meantime men have worked, and schemed and planned and today we have every modern convenience, churches, schools, libraries, theatres, electric lights, sewers, sidewalks, paved streets and a hundred and one other conveniences our forefathers never dreamed of. These things did not come about by chance or by natural evolution. They came about because men toiled ceaselessly to leave behind them a better world than they found in which they came. Their devotion, their struggles, their ideals, their initiative and determination should be an inspiration to succeeding generations. And the record of their achievements appears in the files of the local newspapers, and that is why they are such valuable records of the triumphs of the pioneers.

Few people who contribute to the news columns of the newspaper are aware that they are contemporary historians. They are chronicling the events of community life for posterity, and generations hence will read the story they have told, and from the struggles of this day they will gain inspiration for the struggles of their day. The newspaper preserves the story of our ideals, our problems and our lives, and those who contribute to the news columns of their local newspaper are therefore doing a valuable service for "those who follow in their wake."

For this reason it is essential that contributors write so that the reader twenty-five or fifty years hence may understand the import of the story. For instance some writers are apt to consider a story of interest only to their particular organization, rather than to the community as a whole. Occasionally one reads an item about a young people's meeting in which John does this and Mary does that. To the average reader this doesn't convey anything; even at the time, and it would convey little a quarter of a century after it is written. If the same organization wanted to check back for historical purposes many years after, John and Mary would not convey to them who were the active members of their group in by-gone days.

The newspaper is truly the archives of the community, and as such is of increasing value to the community as its files grow older. The readers are therefore personally a part of the newspaper, because their contribution to its columns are helping to record the history of the age in which they live.

WHY DOES THIS

WAR AFFECT ME?

Americans may suppose that their homes will still be as secure, that their jobs will still be much the same, that they can still go to the movies as often, talk politics as freely, and send their children to the same schools as they do now, whether the Nazis or the British win this war.

The Norwegians and others thought their peaceful life would never be disturbed because they were apparently out of harm's way and were offending nobody.

The attack on the United States probably would be indirect, through trade, through cutting off South America, through creeping gradually nearer with air bases, and so forth. The U.S. Senate Naval Affairs Committee, of which Senator David L. Walsh, a prominent isolationist, is chairman, reported on May 15, 1940: "From the evidence available, it appears that the United States can be defeated and conquered without military conquest of continental United States. Without a navy capable of controlling the sea areas against an enemy, an effective blockade against our foreign commerce can be established and maintained at points thousands of miles beyond our coasts."

Our outlying possessions will be captured and used against us as advance bases—without the power to carry the fight to the enemy, there can be no alternative other than submission to his wishes.

Therefore each loyal citizen MUST do it that the big Victory Loan drive which started on Monday is made a big success, and do the part in thus assisting to drive Hitlerism and the Nazi hordes from the bounds of civilization! Buy Victory Bonds —Lead for Victory.

WORLD'S WEEK

BY HAROLD L. WEIR

Associate Editor of the "Edmonton Bulletin" and author of the daily column "From the News."

President Roosevelt's proclamation of an unlimited state of national emergency in the United States is still, of course, the big and important news.

It will continue to be important news until every detail of his plan unfolds.

So far, he has laid down a blanket policy of aid to Britain and of protection for British shipping on the seas. He has spoken, even with some Harold L. Weir, bittersweet, of the subversive elements in industry and on the public platform that are interfering with the American program of national security.

He has defined the possible occupation of Dakar and other points by the Axis as hostile acts against the United States.

Above all, he has assumed special powers that will permit him to suspend laws and wage war if he deems it necessary.

All these things, however, are of a more or less general nature. It will be his application of these principles that will supply the surprises and big news.

It is one thing, for instance, to talk bitterly of subversive orators. It is another and bigger thing when Charles Augustus Lindbergh is tucked away in jail without benefit of habeas corpus.

It is a splendid thing to know that the United States has virtually defined her position as a state of war. It will be a stupendous thing when the United States definitely directs that war effort against the common foe.

Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation is vital not so much for what it does as for the magnificent things it promises.

Keenly interesting was the reaction of some of the nations to this announcement. Germany was thoroughly angry but sought desperately to conceal its agitation. Hitler promptly announced that Germany had no thought of aggression in the Western Hemisphere. This indicated two things:

First, that Hitler, being the supreme liar, undoubtedly had aspirations in this hemisphere, and secondly, that the Nazis were in deadly fear that the United States would discover their American aspirations.

Japan, too, reacted in an amazing manner. No sooner was President Roosevelt's speech sizzling over the cables than Japanese editors began to write editorials of thanksgiving that Mr. Roosevelt had directed no embarrassing "blatant" toward Japan.

Other Japanese journalists hoped, rather plaintively, that involvement with the Axis would not lead to the destruction of Japan's foreign trade. In Washington, the Japanese ambassador became suddenly friendly.

Japan, obviously, is one nation that does not believe Adolf Hitler will win.

Vichy got a bitter taste, this last week, of what Britain meant when she said that France would collaborate with the Axis at her own risk.

The Royal Air Force chased an Italian ship into a Tunisian port and

CROP REPORT SAYS MORE RAIN NEEDED

Wheat seeding is practically completed and the sowing of coarse grains is well advanced, says the Bank of Montreal crop report.

A Dominion Government survey indicates the 1941 wheat acreage at 20,882,000 acres, or a decline of 25 per cent from 1940. The acreage sown to coarse grains will be greater than last year. Germination on the whole is even and early growth is strong and sturdy. Soil drifting has caused slight damage in some areas, but recent moderate to heavy rains will prove beneficial. In North-eastern Alberta and the Northern and Western districts of Saskatchewan, good rains are still needed to maintain present prospects.

Wheat seeding has been completed and sowing of coarse grains is practically finished in Alberta. Germination has been satisfactory. Rains over large areas have improved moisture conditions and checked soil-drifting, which was becoming serious in some districts. Some slight frost damage has occurred in scattered localities. The growing sugar beet is favorable and thinning has commenced.

In Saskatchewan, wheat seeding is nearing completion and the planting of coarse grains is well advanced. Germination is even in most districts, but in parts of the Northern and Western regions, where slight damage from blowing occurred, good rains are needed to promote growth.

bombed French port buildings and a French ship lying in harbor.

A French tanker caught travelling in an Axis convoy was sunk by a British submarine.

Vichy is violently protesting these incidents. But she is not likely to get much sympathy or consideration.

When she decided to collaborate with the Axis, she was told what she could expect. Now she is getting it.

It is neither the will of the people of France nor good business for Vichy to run with the hares and hunt with the hounds.

It is significant to note that Vichy was giving sanctuary to Axis vessels in her colonies almost at the moment that Admiral Darlan was protesting to the United States that Vichy would not permit Germany to use those colonies.

President Roosevelt evidently knew how much the word of Admiral Darlan was worth when he took no notice of the French protestations of innocence and very plainly implied, in his speech that the Axis occupation of French Dakar would mean war with the United States.

Catholic Girls' Retreat

Is Well Attended

The annual retreat for girls at St. Joseph's Academy, Wainwright, was held this year during last week end. The exercises of retreat, which were conducted by Very Reverend G. E. Hermann, Superior of the Redemptorist Fathers, Calgary, opened Thursday evening, and closed Sunday with the consecration of those present to the Blessed Mother of God, followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The large number attending, forty-five in all, was composed of young ladies from the parish, and also girls from the various missions attached to the Wainwright parish.

Concurrently with the retreat the Forty Hours' Devotion at Blessed Sacrament Church was also conducted. The closing ceremonies taking place Sunday evening last.

PICTURE SHOW AND

DANCE BIG SUCCESS

Although the weather was not propitious, no doubt the rain which fell last Wednesday was thoroughly welcomed by our farmers; and even at that quite a nice crowd attended the free picture show which was put on by the local Massey-Harris agent, Mr. Gordon Graham in the theatre.

During the three shows held, Mr. H. Planton and Mrs. J. Grant from the East both gave very interesting talks, extolling the advantages of the machinery which was pictorially explained in detail.

The dance in the evening in the Masonic Hall saw a good crowd present from both town and country, and the music by Mr. J. Hafso of Viking was much enjoyed.

Elite Adventure Picture

For over two hours at least, The Warner Bros. melodrama "The Sea Hawk" which will show at the Elite for this week end, will enable audiences to forget the cares of a war-torn world and thrill to the sweeping spectacle of an adventurous saga.

The Sea Hawk is probably the most impressive adventure brought to the screen since "Robin Hood" and has been produced on the same lavish scale.

It has action, pageantry and romance; and is truly an outstanding bit of medieval seamanish.

Errol Flynn takes the leading role, with Brenda Marshall carrying the love interest and intrigue, while a host of other well-known screen artists all add their quota for the patrons' enjoyment.

Proving that local newspaper advertising is proving a big help in promoting business for scores of Massey-Harris dealers who employ this means of keeping their names and business before the public, the M.H. house organ, "The M. EDGERTON

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Miles, a daughter, on Tuesday, May 27th, at the University Hospital in Edmonton.

Our complaint, in regard to dust, must have had some effect, for there is none to be seen—just mud now. We refer you to the rural mail carrier for a picturesque description of that latter stuff.

Ed. Kington was detained in Wainwright hospital last week, when he went to Dr. Wallace for a consultation. We sincerely hope he will soon be up and about again, and that nothing serious is ailing.

Rev. C. H. and Mrs. Morrison returned on Friday from a business trip to Calgary.

Clair, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cooper suffered painful injuries early last Friday evening, when he fell from a tree whilst gathering crows' eggs. He was taken immediately to Wainwright hospital by Mr. J. P. Gilmour, and latest reports upon the youngsters condition are favorable.

Accidents like the above make us realize how desperately this district needs a resident doctor.

Red Cross members gathered at the home of Mrs. Reg. Kington on Monday and Wednesday evenings of last week for the purpose of quilting. The result was three large comforters, and these, with many other articles, made still another large bale, which was dispatched on Saturday to Red Cross headquarters. For a small village, these energetic ladies have certainly accomplished a good deal during the past 18 months. Go to it, ladies! more and more will be needed before Hitler and his gang are put where they belong.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Davidson motored to Edmonton Sunday last, to visit their daughter Joey (Mrs. Geoff Miles), also, we presume, to take a peep at their very first grand-child. Congrats! to all concerned.

Sheepskin Flats

On Friday, May 31st, a dance was held in our school in aid of the bombed-out victims of England.

An enormous crowd attended when a suit-case donated by Mr. D. Gardner was raffled: the winning ticket-holder being Mrs. May Tondy, former teacher at the school. Also, a fruit cake donated by Mrs. D. Gardner, was raffled when Mr. Carmen Coleman, of Wainwright, held the lucky winning ticket. Somewhere in the neighborhood of forty dollars was made by the evening's entertainment and great credit is due both to Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, who practically unaided, made all the necessary arrangements to raise this money. We sincerely hope that some little one whose Daddy lies in Crete will benefit by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner's patriotism.

In spite of the bad roads, quite a number of the younger people journeyed to Vermilion to see the film, "Gone with the Wind", and enjoyed it immensely.

We hear that Mr. G. Noakes has moved his residence a little further east of the old site.

Sympathies are extended to Freddie Johnston, who recently found that the ponies still can buck mighty hard.

RENDEZ-VOUZ IN VIENNA

BY LESLIE HAMILTON

Synopsis of preceding installments.

Rex Munroe, a Canadian of British parentage but also of many years' residence in the United States, finding himself marking time in London, England, a week before the "2nd chapter of the Great War" began to unfold.

Accepts an invitation from his friend Colonel Sir Charles Lorne, of the British Secret Service, to attend at the Colonel's office in Whitehall and discuss a matter of grave importance.

Munroe has an inkling that the request—in view of the disturbance international situations, and his own previous service with Sir Charles in the British Army—points to some dangerous mission which he is going to be asked to carry out as an intelligence agent.

Now go on with the story from here.

CHAPTER TWO

It was shortly after seven o'clock that evening when Munroe, leaving his flat to keep his appointment with Sir Charles Lorne, drove leisurely along Brompton Road towards Queen Street.

Turning right at the intersection he carried straight on, beyond Sloane Street, and thence across Belgrave Square to Hyde Park corner. Carefully filtering his way over that major traffic junction he bore right, then left under the impressive monumental arch which guards the entrance to this point, into the grounds of St. James.

Once inside the park the car, with its motor softly purring, rolled gently down Constitution Hill, half circled the beautiful Victoria Memorial, then nosed left into the Birdcage Walk which terminates in Great George Street and Westminster.

Turning left again and driving slowly north up Whitehall, Rex pulled into the curb a few minutes later and parked his car in front of a grim sombre medieval structure, one of several of this famous thoroughfare now used by the British Government as offices for its many and varied departments.

Although the nerve centre of M.I. 5 (Military Intelligence, Dept. Five), the special activities carried on in the particular building entered by Munroe would never be suspected by the general public, where, once inside its frowning portals open day and night one is promptly accosted by a neat uniformed guard on duty, who politely but firmly enquires the nature of one's business.

Giving his card to the man who came forward to meet him, Rex briefly stated his appointment.

"That is quite correct, sir, and right on the dot!" the messenger smiled in reply, as the deep voice of Big Ben reverberated through the still night. "Colonel Lorne left instructions for you to go straight up his room, sir," the man continued. "You know your way, sir, I understand?"

"Oh yes, I've been here quite often before so I can toddle along by myself, thanks very much."

"Very good sir!" the messenger concluded, as Munroe moved towards a dark corridor leading to the central rotunda of the building, and from there a wide stone stairway ascended to the upper regions. Climbing these Rex turned along the floor hallway and, stopping before a plain, familiar door as descriptive markings of any sort whatever, tapped firmly upon the panel.

"Come in!" a pleasant voice invited.

Entering as he was bidden, a hearty "Good evening, Rex; punctual as usual!" greeted him from the figure of Colonel Lorne, seated at a massive old-fashioned desk.

"My one redeeming virtue," Munroe laughingly responded, coming forward into the room and shaking hands with his friend who had risen to welcome him.

"But you always practice it and that's most unusual, especially in London where it's the fashion to be late. However, make yourself comfortable in that chair," Sir Charles invited, pointing to a deep leather armchair standing beside the desk.

"Merci beaucoup!" Rex chuckled, as with a predatory glint in his eye he reached towards a box of choice cigars, murmuring as he helped himself: "Si vous plait, mon ami!"

"If you please, you mean, don't you?" Lorne laughingly responded as he repeated himself. "But it's quite all right, old boy, they're only on view because I know your weakness." "The hell, eh?" Rex shot back, clipping the tip of a Laranga perfecto and carefully lighting the butt end until it burned evenly.

"I don't think any butt is required to induce you to nibble at the proposition I'm going to outline," remarked the Colonel.

"In that case, it must be romantic, adventurous and also profitable," Munroe grinned in reply.

"The last one, perhaps. The second one: undoubtedly! But the first, well . . . as you are a confirmed bachelor that should be the least of your worries!"

"Listen to the voice of wisdom," came Munroe's snappy retort. "Still, as I'm badly bent financially I'll probably be interested. Especially if the dividends provide three square meals a day and roof over my erstwhile head. Incidentally, is it something in your line?"

"Yes and No!" Sir Charles replied. "But I'll give you all the information I can, and then you will be able to judge for yourself."

"Carry on! I'm all ears and attention."

"You will treat anything pertaining to this matter in strict confidence," his friend began, with an enquiring glance at Rex. "That's understood, of course."

"I understand," Munroe assured him, returning the look of one of apocryphal interest and thinking, as he had often thought on previous occasions, how well the phrase, "the right man in the right place" described Sir Charles.

With his cigar drawing evenly and reclining at ease in the comfortable leather chair, Rex was frankly curious, as well as eager, to hear what had prompted Lorne to get in touch with him so urgently.

"This morning," Colonel Lorne continued, "a request for a reliable man to go on a mission to Vienna was received by me from a certain party on the Continent. It is a bit irregular, as the mission referred to is not an official one, although, owing to the practical certainty of war, we are indirectly interested. Because of its private nature, however, and other factors involved, we cannot use a government agent. It is a mission, nevertheless," he added, "demanding someone who can be trusted implicitly, and it is also desirable that such a person be English. I therefore thought of you immediately, because in my opinion you're the ideal chap for the job. You're British through and through, you possess the qualities essential for success, and you can pass for an American if necessary, something which might prove invaluable; and I know I can trust you."

"Thank you for your confidence, Charles," Munroe responded, and then drily commented: "So my Uncle Sammy once becomes an asset for a change, does it?" referring to what, in ordinary business dealings in England, he had often found a serious handicap.

"Just so! Although it will only be of help to you within Germany itself, your British passport, of course, precludes your posing as an American when crossing any of the frontiers, or should you encounter official enquiry regarding your presence in the country at all."

"Why not fix me up with a Yankee over-seas?" Rex ventured. "I've heard that plenty to be picked up around Antwerp, for a price, and if you know where to go."

"Between ourselves, one could be obtained from certain shady sources," the Colonel admitted. "In this case, however, I think you'd find far better if you fall in the cart to be traveling on legitimate credentials. Even then, things would be sticky enough should you still be on the wrong side of the frontier after war is declared."

"You're telling me!" Munroe retorted with a wry grimace. "It would be interminable in one of their nice little concentration camps for the duration—if they caught me!"

"Undoubtedly, I'm afraid," Sir Charles agreed. "Nevertheless, your best plan would be to openly go as a visitor on holiday," he continued, "because the greener you appear to be the better; and that's where your advantage of German is really an advantage in this instance, although, at first glance it might appear otherwise."

"I was wondering about that angle and whether my inability to 'Ja Ja in Deutsch' would prove to be a serious obstacle," Rex put in, "but if I'm to play a dumb tourist on the loose, my shortcomings in that respect won't matter very much."

"That will be the least of your troubles. However, should you decide to go you will be able to leave direct from Brussels for Vienna. It's only an over-night and a day run from there by the Ostend Express."

"Why Brussels? Why not leave direct from London?"

"Because the Continental party I previously referred to is in Brussels, and that's where you will be approved and given full details, as well as arrange for your expenses and reward—if successful."

"Can't you give me the whole story now?"

"I could, but I'm not at liberty to do so, as the Brussels party wishes to size up the person I recommend before concluding final arrangements."

"Does that mean I must run over to Belgium before I'll know what it's all about?"

"Yes; he prefers to discuss the proposition at first hand with the individual concerned, over there."

"Suppose there is nothing doing; am I out my fare to Brussels and back?" Rex enquired.

"No, not at all," his friend assured him. "I will refund your out-of-pocket expenses if you turn it down; or if, on the other hand, he does not approve of you. But I feel quite sure my selection will suit him all right, and that you will likewise agree to attempt it."

"Thanks again," Rex acknowledged, "and just one thing more. Do you feel certain I can handle this stunt, having due regard to all issues involved?"

"Yes I do!" Sir Charles replied without hesitation. It might prove a bit more dangerous than some of the little adventures you've had in the past, but that's all."

"One other question. Has this party in Brussels any official status? In view of his request being made to you—it looks like it—to me."

"I would rather let him explain the circumstances, for certain reasons which have a bearing on the situation at present."

"How soon do you want me to leave for Brussels," Rex surrendered, "and to whom do I report, etc.?"

"At once!" the Colonel requested. "Upon arrival I want you to get in touch with Count Felix von Arnberg immediately. His address is 49 Rue St. Anne, about ten minutes by cab from la Gare du Nord. It's near la Porte du Namur and as you know Brussels fairly well, that will give you some idea of the location."

"I think I know just about where it is: out in the Avenue Louise section, not far from our Embassy."

"That's right."

"Does the Count speak English?" was Munroe's next question.

"Oh yes, just as good as we do; so you will be able to converse with him quite fluently."

"Well, I guess that's all I need to know at present, and as you wish me to be on my way as soon as possible, I think I'll run along. I can attend to a few personal matters tonight and also pack, which will leave me time to pop into Belgrave Square for a German visa in the morning, something I'd better fix up before I leave London."

"By all means," Lorne agreed with him. "You might have some difficulty getting one in Brussels if you leave it till afterwards. If you don't use it, I'll put it down to out-of-pocket expenses," he laughed, with a knowing chuckle under his breath.

TALLER, HEALTHIER CHILDREN

When Plenty of Vitamin B Complex
In Diet, Research Shows

(by Mary Claire Thompson)
No matter what a child wants to be when he grows up, good health is a valuable asset. It is even better than an Aladdin's lamp for it gives him an open sesame to making a success of any job. Buoyant health helps anyone to "climb the ladder" in a career and also enjoy life to the full.

Good food is a basis of good health. Proper selection of foods for children will start them out with strong bones and teeth, sturdy bodies that resist disease. Diet experts say, "plenty of milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, called the 'protective' foods because they prevent physical deficiencies that lead to disease as the child grows up."

Research study of the past few years has revealed that plenty of vitamins in the daily diet helps to keep the body fit and in the case of children promotes better growth. So in planning children's diets, protective foods rich in vitamins should be selected. Every vitamin is necessary in the diet because each has its own special function.

Vitamin B, however, has been found to be particularly good for growing children. Although for adults this vitamin has value as a tonic to keep the nervous system in good order, for children the vitamin B complex assists in healthy body development.

The results of an experiment carried out in California with two groups of children have shown that extra vitamin B complex does help not only to increase weight but also gives a greater gain in height. One group of children had extra vitamin B complex in the form of wheat germ added to the daily diet for a number of weeks, the other children were kept on their regular diet. Those who had wheat germ every day showed a greater gain in weight and height.

"Wheat germ is one of the best natural sources of the vitamin B complex," says Henry Borosok, the author of a recently published book, "Vitamins: What They Are and How They Will Benefit You." Fortunately, adding this simple form of vitamin B complex to children's foods is no trick at all. You can buy it hygienically packaged in purified form at nearby stores. Too, it is especially treated or stabilized to prevent rancidity.

In preparing children's meals sprinkle this wheat germ over cereals or cream soups. Add it to chopped meat and egg dishes or combine a few tablespoons of it with plain cookie mixtures just before baking. If you have picnic or school lunches to make, add some wheat germ to sandwich fillings.

In this way you will be sure of giving children the vitamin B complex they need to become strong, healthy men and women.

Rendezvous In Vienna

"But if you have it," he went on, you will be forewarned should you wish to leave for Vienna without delay. And the best of luck, old scout," he added, to which Rex good-humoredly responded: "Thanks 'anigo mio.' I'll probably need it!" "Might as well start packing now and, er, take along a few of those cigars," his friend invited, rising and smiling broadly as Munroe stood up to take his leave.

"Muchas gracias! I don't mind if I do!" Rex grinned in response, slipping a generous handful and stuffing them into his waistcoat pockets.

"See me immediately you return!" Sir Charles called after him as Rex walked towards the door.

"You mean," Munroe amended quickly, with a suggestive lift to his eyebrows, "if, as and when I return!" closing the door gently, and departing upon what later events proved to be a strange and intriguing mission. (To be continued)

RED CROSS NOTES

We thank all those who have donated towards the "Auction Sale" which had to be postponed on account of the rain last Saturday. The sale will now be held on Saturday, June 14th. There is still room for more articles and we hope all who have not been able to send in their contributions to date will please do so and help make this sale an outstanding success.

Get in touch with any member of the Executive and arrangements will be made for a truck to pick up your donations.

The many who have so nobly responded to our call for "help" with our sewing and knitting, we also sincerely thank. More workers are needed! Another large shipment was received at the week-end.

This material when made up into garments will be shipped to the bombed-out areas. Think of the need of these articles of clothing in the British Isles today and come forward, please, and do your bit.

We wish to thank the Wainwright Band for their services on May 27th, during the evening of the Massey-Harris picture show, as well as to the Haiso Bros., of Viking, for their dance music, and gratefully acknowledge the following donations:

Dance held at Battle Creek School, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. D. Gardner, $40.00; Massey-Harris Picture Show and Dance, $19.25; Fabyan Tennis Club dance, $3.75; Saturday Night Hot Dog Stand, $9.02.

DANCE FOR RED CROSS

A most successful dance was held last Friday at Battle Creek in aid of the Red Cross "Bombed-out Fund," this being sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Gardiner.

The splendid club bag which was donated by Dave himself, was won by Mrs. L. Tondou, and the large fruit cake (made and donated by his good wife) beautifully decorated and iced with the words, "There'll Always Be An England," was won by Mr. C. Coleman.

Thanks are also extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson for their valued help in the affair, which was so thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The financial result gave the sum of $40 for the objective, and shows what can be done by a little effort to help those who are suffering to preserve Freedom for us all.
